October is about more than breast cancer awareness—it’s about being pink. Each year, Breast Cancer Awareness Month serves as a reminder for women to take control of their health.

For Rhonda Bailey, a fourth grade teacher for Crescent Public Schools, the day she was told she had breast cancer was the worst day of her life. “Even though I already knew a breast had it, it doesn’t seem real until you’re given the news,” Bailey said.

She knew she had a good chance of getting breast cancer because of her family history.

Cancer is a, bread tum for a class of diseases characterized by abnormal cells that grow and invade healthy cells in the body, according to the National Breast Cancer Foundations. Your risk increases if your relative who was diagnosed before age 50. Breast Cancer starts in the cells of the breasts as a group of cancer cells that can then invade surrounding tissue or spread (metastasis) to other areas of the body.

Cancer begins in the cells—the basic building blocks that make up tissue, which is found in the breasts and other parts of the body. Sometimes, the process of cell growth goes wrong and new cells from when the body doesn’t need them and it can grow into a mass of cells—the cells form a mass of cells that can start to grow and spread into surrounding tissue or blood vessels or lymph vessels, which branch into blood vessels throughout the body and help carry nutrients and other body fluids. When malignant tumors develop in the breast, they travel to other parts of the body throughout the body. When malignant tumors develop in the breast, they travel to other parts of the body.

A QUICK CHECK ON CHESS

The game pieces in chess are called "men." Each player has a set of 16 men. The light-colored set is called the "white" set and the dark-colored set is called the "black" set. Each player has a set of eight pawns and eight "pieces." The pieces consist of one king, one queen, two rooks, two bishops, and two knights.

Zugzwang is a situation in which a player is forced to make an undesirable move. At various times throughout history, chess players were forbidden by many different religions.

For more information on chess, go to your local library and check out these books: Learn Chess Fast! by Raymond Kime & Nancy Haver; "Bright Eye Chess!" by Brian Biggs & Personal Tutors (Audio). The term "checkmate" is believed to have come from the Persian phrase "bash maza" which means "the king is dead."

During the Middle Ages, chess was often an important part of the entertainment provided by the traveling minstrels.

Living chess is a chess game in which humans and animals serve as the pieces on a giant chessboard.

The carbon mark recipe. I am sure where or when the game of chess was first played, but many historians agree that it most likely originated in India sometime during the 1500s. The popularity of the game spread to Persia and then Iraq by the early 1000s. Chess eventually became popular with the rest of the world and is now played by hundreds of millions of people worldwide.

KNIGHTS OF OLD

Chaturanga was a chesslike game that was played in India about 1500 years ago. During the 2100s, knowledge of chess was one of the requirements of becoming a knight. During the 2000s, pawns were often patterned after common laborers such as iron workers, farmers, and innkeepers.

The chess move we see today began to take form in the 1000s.

A move that therefore capture a king is called a "check." Checkmate occurs when the king is under attack becomes trapped and cannot be defended.

A player may resign if he or she feels there is no hope of winning.

There are no "checkmate" recipes. But the person who checkmates the king is the winner.

The alternating pattern of light and dark squares was first used on chessboards in the 1500s. A chessboard should be set up so that a white square is located in the corner to the right of each player. The vertical row of squares are called "files." The horizontal rows of squares are called "ranks."

There are 64 individual squares on a chessboard.

ALL THE RIGHT MOVES

The player with the lighter-colored piece always moves first at the beginning of a game of chess. Before the creation of modern rules in the 1000s, a bishop could keep over occupied squares. However, of years ago, these were often used to determine which chess piece should be moved.

On a night when Guthrie honored their illustrious past the BlueJays continued the tradition.

Usually on big games, Guthrie goes with their silver pants and black jersey, topped off with their signature silver helmet. But right before the BlueJays took the field for Homecoming 2016, the coaches surprised the team with some new uniforms.

“We’ve been sitting on these for a while,” Guthrie Head Coach Kelly Beeby said. “We were ahead and gave them the grey pants at the Wellness still and there were going to wear grey and blue. We ended up warming up in grey and blue and then just before we went back out, we had all the jerseys bagged up and threw them out to the kids. It was pretty exciting for them.
